

Conduct and Behaviour

What is the change?

We are updating our PDSs to reflect our Pledge to "Respect and Protect" regarding the non-weaponisation of our financial products that we offer, to create harm such as financial abuse, and our behaviour standards for both us and our customers.

Effective for new business and policy renewals on or after 17 January 2024. This is to be read in conjunction with your current PDS.

Below is a non-materiality adverse update to the following Product Disclosure Statements:

- Everyday Insurance - Car Insurance Product Disclosure Statement (prepared 1 February 2023)
- Everyday Insurance - Home Insurance Product Disclosure Statement (prepared 1 February 2023)
- Everyday Insurance - Landlords Insurance Product Disclosure Statement (prepared 1 February 2023)

Your conduct and behaviour

You must ensure that, in any dealings in relation to this insurance, you do not engage in conduct which is unreasonable or inappropriate and act in accordance with our Customer Engagement Charter. Examples of unreasonable or inappropriate behaviour include (but are not limited to) when you:

- act in a threatening, harassing or violent manner towards our staff or representatives; or
- engage in conduct which in our opinion is harassing, offensive, threatening, intimidating, abusive or caused or encourages physical or mental harm to another person or promotes violence against any person; or
- in our opinion, have used our products to perpetrate family violence/financial abuse on another person.

Where unreasonable or inappropriate conduct occurs, Hollard may take steps that require communications with our people through third parties only or through a limited channel. In extreme cases we may involve the police or take steps to cancel your policy.

Reasons for cancelling your policy

In addition to any other reasons set out in your agreement with us, we can cancel your policy if we believe that any of the following have occurred:

- in our opinion your behaviour is unreasonable or improper (please see our Customer Engagement Charter for examples); or
- in our opinion you have used our products to perpetrate financial abuse on another person.
